

Graduate Qualities

Take on challenges and opportunities. Apply creative, logical and critical thinking skills to respond effectively. Make and implement decisions. Are flexible, thorough, innovative and aim for high standards

Why

Every career path followed by new graduates involves finding solutions to problems. Each discipline has different types of problems to solve and different ways of finding solutions. Being a good problem solver requires students to develop their creativity, confidence, teamwork skills and capacity for persistence. An important part of the decision making process is the logical analysis of issues and the evaluation of different options and viewpoints. It is also important that graduates are able to implement the decision once it has been made.

An article from Fortune Magazine (June 27, 2005) which interviews eight bold, creative and influential people about what guides their decision making.
- Learn How to Make Decisions Confidently
An online sample chapter from a book on making the right decisions (courtesy of Prentice Hall).
- Statistical Literacy Modules
In everyday life you are exposed to information from surveys and scientific experiment which are designed to tell you something about yourself or the world around you. Statistical literacy is the skill of making sense of this information and working out if the findings presented by these surveys and experiments are accurate. The online Statistical Literacy Modules will
 - Introduce some important statistical concepts
 - Develop your skills in critical analysis
 - Give you the chance to 'check out' your own skills in statistical literacy
- Help Making Career Decisions
This page contains some ideas and links to useful resources when making decisions about your future employment and career.
- Help Making a Career Plan
Researching and preparing an application for a job is a project in itself. This site helps with a step by step process and resources and advice to help.
